Four Easy and Fun Family Activities

This time of year is busy for everyone. But you can still find ways to sneak in more time for family fun. In fact, we've got some great ideas for family activities that can all be done from the comfort of your own home. And that means you don't have to break the bank while you're having fun and staying home.

Get ready for your family's next Friday night in:

Plan a movie night. Pick up everyone's favorite movie snacks. Pop some popcorn. It's time to watch a movie or two. Can't get your family to agree on a movie? Check out a new release or something classic from your public library.

Make a meal together. Nothing brings people together like a good meal — except for a meal you've all made together. Pick some easy dishes that everyone can help with like a healthy twist on pizza, which you'll read about later on in this issue.

Pitch a blanket tent and camp indoors. Staying in doesn't mean you can't go camping. It's time to bring out all of the pillows and blankets. We're putting up our blanket tents in the living room.

Set up a scavenger hunt. The great thing about doing a family scavenger hunt is that it's completely customizable. You can hide things inside the house or just use items you already have lying around. You can write riddles for your checklist or use pictures if you have little ones still learning to read.

A Healthy Twist on a Classic Family Dish

Pizza is a fun meal that the whole family can agree on. It's fun to eat and even easier to make.

Topping a pizza is a great way to get the entire family to help out with dinner. But before you make your shopping list, here are some tips to make your tomato pie a little bit healthier:

Grab a veggie crust.

Rather than using a regular pizza crust, try a frozen veggie crust like cauliflower or broccoli.

Try a sugar-free sauce.

You don't have to skip the sauce to make it healthier. Grab a sugar-free option at the store to try. Or even a no-sugar-added one instead.

Go easy on the cheese.

Cheese is a good source of protein and calcium, but everything is best in moderation.

Load up the veggies.

Go crazy with the vegetable toppings. Let the family pick out their favorites and sneak in a couple of your own.

TIP

Save time by stopping by the salad bar at the store to grab fresh, pre-cut veggies!

Get the Most From Your Coverage: Support With Asthma Care

Where You Live Can Affect Your Health

Recurring health problems can be frustrating. Especially if you're unable to figure out what's causing them.

But if you or your family is having recurring issues, it could be linked to your home.

Walls that are damp or moldy can trigger your asthma. Or they can cause other breathing problems. Older homes may have things like asbestos that can harm you.

If you are a renter, you're not alone. It's your right to have a safe place to live. And the good news is, there is help!

The US Department of Housing and Urban Development has a Resource Locator Tool. It helps find housing resources in your state.

The Center for Disease Control has additional information and resources.

Home State Health can help you find local resources for housing needs. Contact Member Services at 1-855-694-4663 (TTY: 711).

Five Hydration Hacks for the Holidays

The end of the year is a busy time for everyone. It's easy to forget to do basic things like drinking water. While there's no official number for how much plain water you should drink in a day, there are some positive effects to making it a daily routine. Drinking water helps prevent dehydration. But it also helps improve your mood and clears your thinking.

 Start your day with water. Most of us reach for a cup of coffee before our feet even hit the ground. When you go for your cup of joe, grab a second cup to fill with water. Sneaking in water first thing is a great way to start your day hydrated.

 Carry a water bottle with you. Using a refillable water bottle is a great trick to making sure you're hydrating throughout the day. If you keep it with you, you're more likely to drink it.

 Mix things up with some fresh fruit. If you get bored with drinking plain water, try adding some fruit. The more common ones are lemon or lime. But why stop there? If more flavor is what you're missing, add berries, melons, and even pineapple.

 Serve water with your meals. Instead of pairing your meals with sugary drinks, pour yourself a glass of water. Meals can act as milestones to stay hydrated throughout your day.

 Schedule water breaks. Use your phone or computer to set reminders to take a break and get another cup of water. Take a moment to refresh and rehydrate yourself.

Understanding the Basics of SIDS Prevention

Home State Health wants to offer you information about Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) Awareness, and help dispel any fear or mystery about it.

It's true we don't know the exact cause of SIDS. But we do know there are ways to possibly prevent it.

- 1 Know the basics. SIDS can happen in otherwise healthy infants. Usually, cases are determined when there's no cause of death found. It's the leading unexpected death in infants under a year old. It usually happens during sleep. And is more frequent in the winter.
- 2 Certain babies are at higher risks. SIDS occurs more often in boys than girls. African American and Native American infants are up to three times more likely to suffer from SIDS. Infants 2 to 4 months old are the most susceptible. The mother's age and a premature birth may also increase the risk.
- 3 Avoid risks during sleep. The CDC recommends babies sleep on firm surfaces. And that they be laid only on their backs to sleep. Don't keep soft pillows, toys, crib bumpers, and blankets in their sleeping areas.
- 4 Extra exposure can increase chances. When newborns are exposed to infections or overheating, their chances for SIDS goes up. Especially, if they have underlying issues. Also, smoking during pregnancy cuts the amount of oxygen a baby receives. Which can increase the risk of SIDS.
- 5 Prenatal care is key. Keeping your doctors' appointment while pregnant is so crucial. Your visits can help detect things early. It's one of the most important steps new mothers can take before and during pregnancy.

CDC recommends putting babies down to sleep only on their backs.

It's important for expecting mothers to see a doctor while pregnant.

Are You and Your Heart Working Too Much?

Most of us want to perform well at our jobs. But working long hours and not taking care of yourself can cause heart health complications down the road. Home State Health is pleased to offer a few tips. Helping you avoid the pitfalls of working too much and improve your heart health.

Plan and prioritize. Write down ways to add healthy habits into your schedule. Do you want to eat healthier? Exercise more? How about stop checking emails after dinner? Prioritize your goals. But be realistic with yourself. Small steps can make a big difference.

Slumber smarter. You're at a higher risk for cardiovascular and coronary heart disease when you don't get enough sleep. Aim for the recommended seven to nine hours each night. Having a consistent sleep and wake time is good for your body and mind. It tells them to get into a rhythm that helps you feel rested all day long.

Alleviate anxiety. It's important to unwind after a long day of work. Let go of your stress. Unplug and clear your mind. Be present in the moment. Try a yoga class or meditation with videos online. Take a hot shower or listen to music to decompress. Dedicating time to calm down from a busy day can lower your anxiety and depression. And help keep you healthy and alert.

Take some me time. It's important to plan activities you look forward to during the week. Carve out time to read a good book or cook your favorite meals. Even better, think of ideas to stay active, like running or exercising.

Connect with others. Spending time with family, hanging out with friends, or calling friends are great ways to get the health benefits of strong relationships. Make the time to enjoy connecting with friends or loved ones—even virtually—and you'll be improving your health!
